

Voted the best "Macap M4"

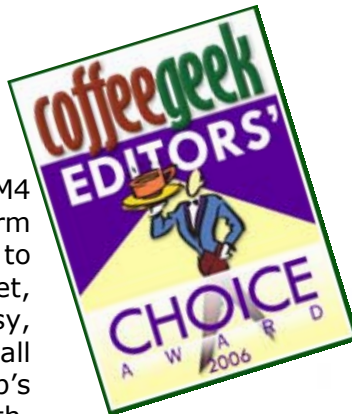

Voted the best Espresso Grinder by CoffeegEEK.com, 2006.

"Macap's newest incarnation of the M4 grinder now comes in a stepless "worm drive" configuration that is very easy to adjust. The grinder is exceptionally quiet, micro adjustments to the grind are easy, and the doser design is first rate. Almost all the grinds are swept out of the Macap's doser, and the lever "action" is so smooth, it feels almost as if it's on hydraulics. The model is also available in a chute version (doserless). The fit and finish on the Macap is stellar - polished chrome (more durable than steel), with dark smoke-tinted plastic. The doser's plastic is all wraparound and very thick. The biggest knock against the grinder is its speed - it takes quite some time to grind out 20 grams for a double espresso."

Its worm gear driven stepless adjustment makes it the best stepless adjustable grinder on the market today. The worm gear makes it simple to make even a minute adjustment and the best part is you can do it with two fingers, with either your right hand or your left.

Some standout features include chrome plated steel to match polished stainless steel espresso machines and the placement of the electrical cord is under the grinder (not out of the side body as found on many other espresso coffee grinders).

Finally, do not feel confused between the Macap M4 and Macap M5 grinder. The M4 grinder is the newest offshoot of the Macap M5.

Macap M4

Bron:

<http://www.coffeegEEK.com/opinions/markprince/12-18-2006>

The Macap M5 has a longer, higher bean hopper on top that makes it extend over 18" in height - not practical for the home. The Macap M4 was designed with a lower, but wider bean hopper profile for use in your home, office, or commercial establishments. Please note that the Macap M4 is considered a commercial-grade grinder and is not returnable under our return policy if used - as this grinder is capable for any espresso machine. Please make sure you have the necessary space before purchasing.

www.casabarista.nl

is onderdeel van 2W Lifestyle B.V. te Ermelo
info@casabarista.nl

© 2007 Casa Barista